Disclaimer

This research is based on the FIFA Official Squad List published on the 1st of June 2010 and amended on the 11th of June. The European Club Association has endeavoured to keep the information up to date, but it makes no representations or warranties of any kind, express or implied, about the completeness, accuracy, reliability, with respect to this information. The aim of this research is purely informative.

Foreword

The FIFA World Cup 2010™ is the most important international football competition in the world. It is organised by the Fédération Internationale de Football Association (FIFA) and the first edition was held in 1930. The 19th edition is hosted in South Africa from the 11th of June to the 11th of July 2010.

For the FIFA World Cup 2010™, all clubs have to release their players for the tournament according to the FIFA regulations: in accordance with Article 36 Paragraphs 2b) and 5c) of the Status and Transfer of Players, "if a player is called up, he must be released to play in the final competition organised by FIFA or a confederation and held in a period fixed/set in the calendar. In this event, the period of release shall be 14 days."

For the European Club Association (ECA), the FIFA World Cup 2010™ is an important event since many ECA member clubs and clubs from all over the world release players for this competition. In accordance with the Memorandum of Understanding between ECA and FIFA/UEFA, for the first time, the FIFA Executive Committee has decided to allocate an amount of USD 40 million from the benefits of the FIFA World Cup 2010 South Africa™ to Member Associations. These Member Associations will then distribute the money to the relevant clubs who have released players, contributing to the success of this competition. This equals to an approximate value of USD 1.600 per player per day.

The purpose of this research is to show the overall situation of players released by clubs all over the world, with a focus on the European ones. The research is based on the official FIFA Squad List published on the 1st of June 2010, amended on the 11th of June. The clubs of the players taken into account in this research are the clubs with which the player was effectively registered in accordance with the FIFA Regulations on the Status and Transfer of Player (articles 10.1 and 5.2).

Introduction

The FIFA World Cup 2010™

The one month global premier football tournament lines up 32 countries, which emerged from a qualification process that began in August 2007 and which involved 204 of the 208 FIFA national associations.

For the 2010 edition, out of the 32 participants, Brazil (5 times), Italy (4 times), Germany (3 times), Argentina (2 times), Uruguay (2 times) and France (1 time) have already won the tournament.

The 2010 participants form 8 groups of 4 teams.

Group A	Group B	Group C	Group D
 South Africa	 Argentina	 England	 Germany
 Mexico	 Nigeria	 United States	 Australia
 Uruguay	 Korea Republic	 Algeria	 Serbia
 France	 Greece	 Slovenia	 Ghana

Group E	Group F	Group G	Group H
 Netherlands	 Italy	 Brazil	 Spain

 Japan	 New Zealand	 Côte d'Ivoire	 Honduras
 Cameroon	 Slovakia	 Portugal	 Chile

This research is based on a comprehensive FIFA World Cup 2010™ players' analysis and outlines in which confederation, country, national championship and club the players were registered in the past season.

In particular, the club analysis shows which clubs contribute the most to the success of the FIFA World Cup 2010™ by releasing their players, with a focus on the UEFA confederation and European leagues. ECA members are also represented throughout this study.

Confederations representation

The table below shows in which confederation the 736 FIFA World Cup 2010™ players are currently playing. 550 players are playing in one of the European national championships (UEFA Member Association), 182 players are playing outside Europe.

Almost one player out of seven is playing in an English league (15.7%). If we only consider the "Big 5" national championships, 384 players (52.1%) are playing in Germany, England, Italy, Spain or France.

Despite not being represented by their national team at the FIFA World Cup 2010™, Russia, Turkey, Scotland, Belgium, Israel, Romania, Columbia, Poland, China PR, Qatar, Norway, UAE, Ukraine, Austria, Bulgaria, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, and Sweden have at least one player from their national championship playing in South Africa.

National championships with 2 players:

China PR, Qatar, Norway, Serbia, Slovakia, Slovenia, UAE, Ukraine, Uruguay.

National championships with 1 player:

Austria, Bulgaria, Cameroon, Côte d'Ivoire, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, Saudi Arabia.

Club analysis

Most represented clubs

299 clubs in total are involved in releasing players.

196 of them are European clubs.

Chelsea FC and FC Barcelona released 13 players, the highest number of players for the FIFA World Cup 2010™ followed by Liverpool FC with 12 players, FC Bayern München with 11 players and Arsenal FC, FC Internazionale Milano, Panathinaikos FC, Real Madrid CF with 10 players each.

From other confederations, April 25, Korea PRC (AFC) released 7 players, CD Olimpia, Honduras (CONCACAF) released 6 players, Wellington Phoenix, New Zealand (OFC) released 5 players, CF Universidad de Chile, Chile (CONMEBOL) and Mamelodi Sundowns South Africa (CAF) both released 4 players.

Interestingly, the top 3 of the most “international” teams are Arsenal FC, England, FC Internazionale Milano, Italy, with 10 players each and VfL Wolfsburg, Germany, with 9 players, but none of them are players of the National association team where the club is playing.

All the English, German and Italian players are playing in their own league, followed by Korea DPR and Spain where 21 players are playing.

The table below outlines which clubs are releasing players for the FIFA World Cup 2010™ and how many. Most of the European clubs have players from different National teams, whilst most European top clubs have players belonging to their own National Association, South America and Africa.

This table shows the calculation of the number of days and average amount per player, per day at the FIFA World Cup 2010™. A club's share of this Distribution Amount is calculated by reference to the number of players from a club who are selected for the representative team squad for the final competition of the 2010 F FIFA World Cup 2010™ and the number of days each player is at the 2010 FIFA World Cup South Africa™, starting two weeks before the opening match of the final competition until the day after his representative team is eliminated. A pro rata share is then passed on to the club(s) with which any relevant player selected for the representative team squad for the final competition of a FIFA World Cup 2010™ was registered in the two years prior to one day after the elimination of the representative team from the final competition. The total number of players selected for all the representative teams participating in the final competition of the FIFA World Cup 2010™ is 736 (i.e. 32 representative teams x 23 players each).

According to this table, on an average cumulative basis, the players will participate in the final competition of the FIFA World Cup 2010™ for a total of 24 228 days. The Distribution amount (USD 40 million gross) divided by the number of days will be approximately 1651$ per player, per day.
